Description: Initiative to advance oncology research by enabling collaborative sharing of historical oncology clinical trial data through a universal platform (database). The initiative aims to network all stakeholders in the cancer community researchers, industry, academia, advocacy, and other organizations to share insights and collaborate on issues that could not be solved individually. To do this, they have made efforts to address issues of data privacy, security, intellectual property, resources, and incentives as part of its effort to maximize participation. Data contributions include control arms of clinical trials, and the platform uses data-security precautions and analytics to pool multiple studies associated with the same diagnosis in a manner that seeks to protect the privacy of patients and the security of the data contributed.
