Proper Citation: CMMR - Canadian Mouse Mutant Repository (RRID:SCR_006144)

Description: Central repository for the physical archive and distribution of cryopreserved ES cells, spermatozoa, ova, embryos, and non-germ cell tissue DNA generated by Canada'''s mouse genome effort. The CMMR acts in coordination with other repositories worldwide and is establishing a nation-wide network of repository nodes to house sub-sets of the resources generated across Canada. The CMMR is the repository and distribution center for the North American Conditional Mouse Mutagenesis project (NorCOMM). The CMMR also collects and stores somatic tissue from mouse models in a variety of formats (fixed, embedded, and glass-slide mounted) enabling world wide access to specimens from established mouse models. Services include: * Embryo cryopreservation and recovery * Ovary cryopreservation and recovery * Strain services, including rederivation by IVF, speed expansion and strain rescue * NorCOMM ES cell withdrawal * Non-NorCOMM ES cell expansion

Abbreviations: CMMR

Synonyms: Canadian Mouse Mutant Repository

Resource Type: material resource, biomaterial supply resource, cell repository

Keywords: RIN, Resource Information Network, live mouse, embryo, germ cell, tissue, embryonic stem cell, mutant, mouse model, spermatozoa, cell, ova, dna, sperm, phenotyping, genetic mapping, pathology, genetic engineering, clone

Funding: Genome Canada ; Charles River Canada
